Download By Filetypes Manual

First, navigate to the Riki web application and log in to find the main page.

Next, navigate to any page that you want to download. This can be done using the index, tags, links, or search features. For this example, we will navigate to the world page using the link.

To download the page please click on the download page button on the right side of the webpage. A pop-up will occur.

Use the drop-down menu to select the format you would like to download the page in. Once a selection is made click the convert button to move on to the next step. Alternatively, you can cancel the download process by clicking the cancel button or clicking anywhere outside of the pop-up window at any time. Today we will choose the DOCX option.

Next, please review the conversion information to ensure that the conversion was successful, and you are happy with the download size. If the conversion information is satisfactory, please click the download button.
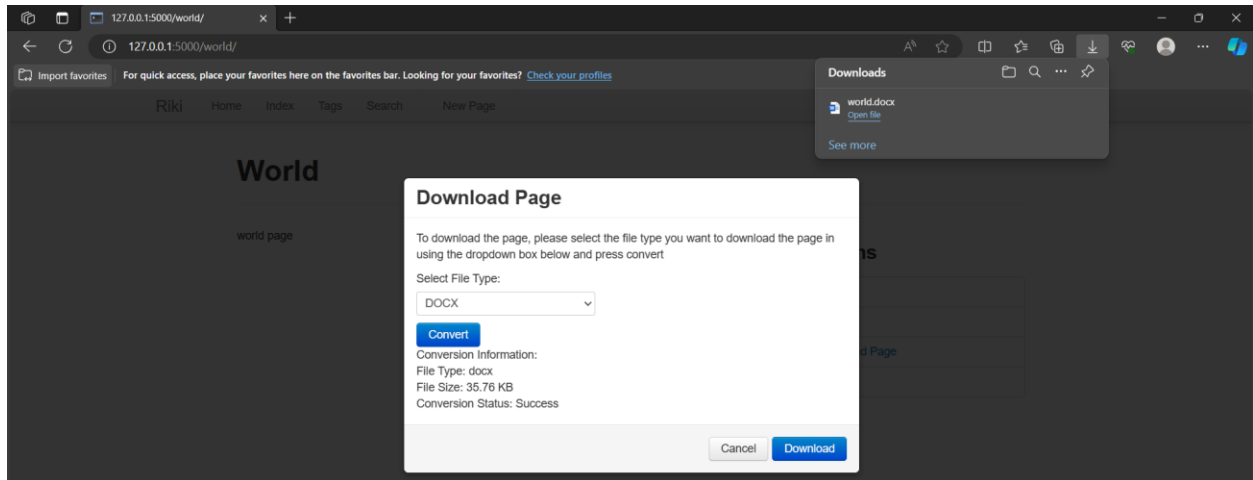

The converted file will be downloaded by your browser. Each browser will have a different location that pops up with the download. Above, the browser being used is Microsoft Edge. Now, please click on the download to open it or navigate to the download folder on your device.
